Our Connection

Earth's Fruits Come Full Circle

The magic of the “grape to glass” journey is the result of an undeniable connection to the land. LDV Winery’s approach to winemaking is to make wines that showcase from where the grapes were grown.

None of this would have been possible without finding the perfect spot to grow world class wine grapes. We found five key locational factors we desired at our special site in the Chiricahua Mountain foothills in Southeastern Arizona at 5,000 feet above sea level.

These locational factors included:

- Mountain Environment
- Pristine and Plentiful Water
- Superior Air and Water Drainage
- Volcanic Soil
- No Previous Commercial Agriculture

Our philosophy is focused on being good land stewards while growing the highest quality wine grapes. We believe great wine starts in the vineyard and our responsibility is to accentuate the fruit to produce memorable wines. Our hope is that the next generation will continue this legacy.

Our philosophy is focused on being good land stewards and hoping the next generation will continue our quality farming legacy.

WINEMAKER INTERVIEW

What about Southeastern Arizona excites you to grow grapes and make wine every day?

I have always been a big fan of mountain fruit and the wines made from those areas. Whether it is Purisima Mountain, Howell Mountain, or Mount Veeder, I have gravitated toward the lushness and intensity of high-altitude wines. When I investigated our site, at 5,000-foot elevation with a 10,000-foot mountain in the backyard coupled with volcanic soil and a creek with 100-year old oak trees, I thought why not here!

What makes LDV Winery wines unique?

It is all about our place! My winemaking style focuses on accentuating the grapes that are grown here and showcasing the fruit's nuances in each wine. We get what I call the reverse California effect. During the ripening period, the Chiricahua Mountains create a micro-climate of hot sunny mornings, cooler, cloudy afternoons, and cool nights. California has cool foggy mornings and sunny, hot afternoons. In either case, there is a long respite between the heat of the day from one day to the next. This differential intensifies the flavors and creates bright acidity. We believe so much in this place that our wines are made from 100% estate grown fruit from our vineyard.

What 3 words describe LDV wines and why?

Plush. Robust. Memorable. Our winemaking style is extremely gentle with very little manipulation and long aging to create a plush, soft mouth feel. Robust because we do not make shy wines. Our mountain fruit is intense and highly concentrated with nice acidity. As a result, our wines are always memorable.

OUR COMMITMENT

LDV Winery produces high quality wines that authentically represent the unique vineyard characteristics of volcanic soils and high-altitude mountain grapes.

LDV believes great wine is the result of smart farming and very little manipulation in the winemaking process.

OUR PHILOSOPHY

LDV wines are an expression of the grapes grown in our vineyard annually. Each wine has its own story to tell and was made to bring enjoyment with every sip. LDV celebrates the grape to glass journey.
